Visit @ColumbiaGSAPP on Instagram to browse final review sessions hosted by the architecture and urban design programs, and learn about the M.S. in Computational Design Practices program’s “View and Review” session this Friday, August 12 below.

CDP SUMMER INTENSIVE: VIEW AND REVIEW

Ware Lounge, Avery Hall
August 12, 12pm – 5:15pm

Instead of a structure where classes are reviewed separately, the final review for the inaugural semester of the CDP program will review all three seminars and the colloquium comprehensively. Join the session to think through the broader implications of “computational design,” as students develop their work towards a year-long project.

The Master of Science in Computational Design Practices \(M.S.CDP\) is an innovative program for recent graduates and practitioners that extends and integrates disciplines between architecture, data visualization, and urban planning—focusing specifically on computational design practices for the built environment at multiple scales.
