RACE, CASTE, HOUSING: AN OPEN CONVERSATION ON THE NATIONAL FUTURE

November 6, 1pm
virtual

The Housing Lab student team hosts an open conversation on the post-election future of housing, race, and caste in the US, facilitated by Johane Clermont, '22 MArch and Housing Lab GRA Fall '20-Spring '21.

Organized by the Housing Lab as part of a series of informal interdisciplinary conversations on housing, race, racism, and whiteness during the fall 2020 semester.

MAPPING THE NEW POLITICS OF CARE

The Center for Spatial Research (CSR) at Columbia GSAPP and the Global Health Justice Partnership (GHJP) of the Yale Law School and Yale School of Public Health recently announced the launch of the website Mapping the New Politics of Care.

Using a wide array of up-to-date data, the interactive map shows that decisions about caring for those affected by the pandemic depend not just on surging or falling infection rates but instead on taking into account a range of pre-existing vulnerabilities in US society.
