Dear GSAPP Community,

In this extraordinary academic year, and I am so proud of what we have been able to achieve individually and as a community.

The team from Columbia Global Centers is co-organizing the 2020 Global Centers Postdoc Innovation Competition, a competition that aims to support early-career researchers from around the world. The competition is open to postdocs from all disciplines and aims to identify and support innovative ideas that have the potential to make a significant impact on society.

The competition will award $50,000 in funding to the winning project and a $25,000 in funding to the runner-up. The winning project will also be invited to present their work at the Global Centers Postdoc Innovation Conference, which will be held virtually on September 21–25.

Applications are due by September 25. In order to apply, you will need to submit a research proposal and a budget. The review process will be conducted by a panel of judges who will evaluate the proposals based on their potential for impact and feasibility.

If you are interested in applying, please visit the competition website to learn more and to submit your application. I encourage you to participate in this exciting opportunity to showcase your research and to contribute to the global conversation on the role of research in shaping our world.

Sincerely,

Bryan C. Lee, Jr.
