Annual Report
2010-11

It is my great pleasure to once again present you with the Aspen Art Museum's annual report covering our 2010-11 fiscal year. The publication documents the museum's accomplishments, including a review of AAM exhibitions, public and educational programs, donor news, and combined institutional and AAM Foundation financial statements.

We have accomplished much over the past year, and I want to acknowledge our amazing donors for contributing so vitally to these successes. In addition to continuing our annual efforts of bringing art to our community, we have also made tremendous strides toward realizing our longstanding goal of a new facility in downtown Aspen.

In the past year we moved forward decisively in our endeavors. As is reflected on our balance sheet, we have acquired the land needed to build our building at the corner of South Spring Street and East Hyman Avenue. 637 East Hyman Avenue is officially the property of the Aspen Art Museum, with the previous structures completely removed in preparation for the commencement of construction.

During the spring and summer of 2011, we utilized the new site for a number of exciting site-specific exhibition and outreach opportunities. Throughout the summer these highly interactive installations were greeted warmly by the community and foreshadowed the eventual transformation of the space into a world-class museum. Our summer activities culminated in an official groundbreaking ceremony and community party on "Aspen's Day," August 16, 2011 (8.16.11).

These substantive steps toward our new building are extremely exciting. Shigeru Ban and the design team continue to develop and refine the building design, and our New Building Committee is actively engaged in the process. This progress, in conjunction with closing in on reaching the Capital and Endowment Campaign goal of $50 million, brings us ever closer to the commencement of construction of our 30,000-square-foot facility.

To those who have put so much energy into making this wonderful moment for the AAM a reality, I express my deepest gratitude. As always, I am especially thankful for the unflagging financial support we receive from our Board of Trustees, National Council, our members, corporate partners, and our many additional committed donors.

I am also extremely grateful to our AAM volunteer leadership and, once again, thank 2010-11 Board President Daniel Holtz, Vice President John Phelan, Secretary Gayle Stoffel, and our Treasurer Jonathan Lee for their steadfast dedication, service, and contributions to the AAM, present and future.

I hope you enjoy this annual report and reflect on all that you have made possible through your efforts. I look forward to seeing you at the museum and to the many highlights we will share as we move forward together towards our future.

Yours sincerely,

Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson

As an engaged member of the Aspen Art Museum, I look forward to our annual review of activities. It never ceases to amaze me what our museum accomplishes each year—powerful proof of our institution’s ongoing value to the community.

As President, I want to recognize the tremendous leadership of the AAM Board of Trustees. These volunteer leaders donate their time, energy, and finances at the highest level to ensure the smooth operation of the AAM. The accomplishments recorded in this report have been made through our collective ability to draw on their vast wealth of experience to guide our policies and craft our institutional vision. I would also like to acknowledge the service of three members of the Board who completed a second term of service on September 30, 2011: Garrett Bouton, Frannie Dittmer, and Pamela Sanders.

We welcomed three new Trustees to the Board on October 1, 2010—Pam Alexander, Michael Gamson, and Mary Scanlan—and welcomed back returning Trustee Nancy Magoon. In addition, this summer we made the following midterm appointments: Lance Armstrong, Barbara Bluhm-Kaul, Domenico De Sole, Ramiro Garza, and Nicola Marcus. I welcome them all to the Board and thank them in advance for their service.

In looking at these names, in combination with those currently serving on the AAM Board, it is easy to understand the source of our institution’s strength. We must also acknowledge another source of tremendous support in the form of our AAM National Council, whose vital contributions to our exhibition program allow for a predictable and sustainable funding source for our core mission. I thank Eleanore and Domenico De Sole for their leadership of this vibrant and essential group.

I also want to thank our members, sponsors, and supporters for their major investments in our shared efforts. The following pages document achievements only made possible by a large and diverse group. The combination of our many human assets and a strong financial position encourage us all to look toward the future with confidence, as we extend our deepest gratitude to every donor and donation that assures our continuing success.

With profound thanks,

Daniel Holtz

Exhibitions

October 20–November 28, 2010

A museum-wide collaborative exhibition, 970.org presented weekly rotations of art curated by seven local Roaring Fork Valley arts organizations and a group exhibition of work by AAM museum staff and founders curated by AAM Curatorial Associate (now Community Liaison) Nicole Kinsler. In conjunction with the exhibition, the AAM presented a series of free public programs (see p. 19); each participating institution also had use of the upper gallery as a community space for tours, lectures, film presentations, and more.

Organized by the AAM in collaboration with each of the seven participating arts organizations. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

Swedish painter Mamma Andersson works between domestic interiors and the Nordic landscape, often layering imagery to create subtly haunting, dreamlike atmospheres. Drawing from a variety of sources—from the narrative suggestions of filmic imagery to the physical space of theatrical sets—she employs disjointed perspectives and mismatched spatial relationships to create a sense of the otherworldly. This was the artist's first one-person museum exhibition in the US and was accompanied by a fully illustrated catalogue (see p. 25).

Organized by the Aspen Art Museum and funded in part by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

Roger Hiorns

December 10, 2010–
February 6, 2011

British sculptor Roger Hiorns makes objects that explore transformation, both material and perceptual, and incorporate esoteric found materials—jet and automobile engines, plastinated cow brains, perfume, and thistles, among others. For his AAM exhibition, Hiorns created a new group of abstract works exploring transparency as a sculptural property and the dynamic interplay between material and meaning.

Organized by the Aspen Art Museum and funded in part by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. The exhibition brochure was underwritten by Mary and Harold Zlot. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

Susan Philipsz:
White Winter Hymnal

December 10, 2010–
February 21, 2011

Instead of becoming a focal point within landscape or architecture, Susan Philipsz’s audio installations dramatize their setting. Working solely with her own voice, and performing her own arrangements of both popular and folk songs, she imbues the spaces her work inhabits with introspection and personal experience. The 2010 Turner Prize-winner installed her haunting sound work, which featured a slower, unaccompanied version of the Fleet Foxes song “White Winter Hymnal,” at Trestle Bridge on Snowmass Mountain.

Organized by the Aspen Art Museum in collaboration with the Aspen Skiing Company with general exhibition support provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts.

Mark Manders:
Parallel Occurrences/
Documented Assignments

February 18–May 1, 2011

Since 1986, Dutch artist Mark Manders has been engaged in what he calls his “Self-Portrait as a Building,” an ongoing and monumental project that has come to define his overall practice. Co-organized with the Hammer Museum, this exhibition invited viewers to explore his poetic and uncanny world, populated with sculptural tableaux that mix the everyday (sugar, tea bags, a pencil), the fantastic (miniature factories), and the historical (figures that echo Etruscan and Greek sculpture styles). The touring exhibition was accompanied by a lavish, fully illustrated catalogue (see pp. 15 and 25).

An extension of the AAM’s presentation, Manders’s Two Interconnected Houses

(2010), was shown in collaboration with The Thrift Shop of Aspen.

Organized by the Aspen Art Museum and the Hammer Museum, Los Angeles. Generous support for this exhibition was provided by the Mondriaan Foundation, Amsterdam. The AAM presentation was funded in part by the AAM National Council along with major underwriting from Susan and Larry Marx. This exhibition was supported, in part, by public funds from the Netherlands Cultural Services. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

May 13–July 17, 2011

Examining artists who embrace photography’s plasticity and ability to exist, sometimes uneasily, in multiple contexts, The Anxiety of Photography featured works by Colby Bird, Miriam Böhm, Liz Deschenes, Roe Ethridge, Brendan Fowler, Mario Garcia Torres, Leslie Hewitt, Matt Keegan, Annette Kelm, Elad Lassry, Anthony Pearson, Sara Greenberger Rafferty, Matt Saunders, David Benjamin Sherry, Erin Shirreff, Dirk Stewen, Sara VanDerBeek, and Mark Wyse. The touring exhibition was curated by AAM Associate Curator (now Adjunct Curator) Matthew Thompson and accompanied by a fully illustrated catalogue (see p. 25).

Organized by the Aspen Art Museum and funded in part by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Additional exhibition support was provided by the Bruce T. Halle Family Foundation for Latin American Art. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

May 13–July 17, 2011

Old-Fashioned Fourth of July Parade Performance and AAM Picnic

July 4, 2011

Nico Muhly's Drones for Aspen project was composed specifically for low-power FM broadcast around the museum and as an open-ended performance. Local musicians played along to the broadcast with a score penned by Muhly as part of Aspen's annual Old-Fashioned Fourth of July parade; everyone was invited to the AAM afterward for a free picnic and family activity.

Organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts.

Cathy Wilkes

May 20–July 17, 2011

Best known for sculpture and installations that work associatively rather than according to a strict narrative, Turner Prize-nominated artist Cathy Wilkes has created a distinctive, personal vocabulary that explores the relationship between inner reality and experience of the physical world. Wilkes's exhibition at the AAM was both her first one-person exhibition in the United States and the first to focus on her paintings—works of poignant immediacy and intimacy.

Organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council with major underwriting from the Kerry and Simone Vickar Family Foundation. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

Haegue Yang: The Art and Technique of Folding The Land

2011 Jane and Marc Nathanson Distinguished Artist in Residence

Residency: Spring 2011

July 29–October 9, 2011

The AAM's fourth Jane and Marc Nathanson Distinguished Artist in Residence was Berlin- and Seoul-based artist Haegue Yang. Internationally renowned, Yang creates installations that include photographic, video, and sculptural elements and are informed by the artist's philosophical and political investigations. Yang's AAM exhibition featured a new series of light sculptures that incorporate clothing display racks and mountain river driftwood, a dramatic floating wall system, and a wallpaper work designed in collaboration with Manuel Raeder, who also designed the exhibition catalogue.

Haegue Yang's Jane and Marc Nathanson Distinguished Artist in Residence residency and exhibition were organized by the Aspen Art Museum and funded by Jane and Marc Nathanson. Additional funding was provided by the AAM National Council. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. The publication was underwritten by Toby Devan Lewis. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

Stephen Shore: Abu Dhabi

July 29–October 9, 2011

As an artist and teacher, Stephen Shore has had perhaps the most deeply felt impact on American photography of the past half-century. His iconic images from the American Surfaces and Uncommon Places series of the 1970s brought radical treatments of color and space to seemingly banal views of American life. Featuring 36 images from a recent series of photos shot entirely in Abu Dhabi, Shore's AAM exhibition—the first time these images were printed or exhibited—gave audiences a beautifully nuanced, street-level view of the region.

Organized by the AAM and funded in part by the AAM National Council along with major support provided by Stefan Edlis and Gael Neeson. General exhibition support was provided by The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts. Exhibition lectures were presented as part of the Questrom Lecture Series.

Art And Activities
Summer 2011

For the summer of 2011, the site of the new Aspen Art Museum was activated with an engaging program of art and activities that included the exhibitions and artworks listed below and outdoor public programs described on page 20. The key feature was a temporary Shigeru Ban pavilion near the center of the site, located at the corner of South Spring Street and East Hyman Avenue in Aspen.

General support for programming on the AAM Future Home site was provided by the AAM National Council. The AAM acknowledges Aspen Earthmoving, Bluegreen, Good Earth Landscape and Maintenance, Mountain Blue Turf Farm, Michael and Kathleen Strang of Strang Ranch, and William H. Baker Construction for donating materials and resources to this site.

AAM Traveling Exhibitions

2010-11

During the 2010-11 fiscal year, three Aspen Art Museum-organized exhibitions were on view across the country, giving national audiences a chance to see AAM-generated programming. AAM members wishing for another day to spend with their favorite artist's works had the chance to do so, and AAM members at the Art Addict level and above had the opportunity to act on their reciprocal membership privileges at institutions participating in both the Modern and Contemporary (ModCo) and North American Reciprocal Museum (NARM) programs.

Exhibition in a Box

2010-2011

Launched in 2007, the museum's Exhibition in a Box (EiaB) program continues to be one of the AAM's most relevant and successful community-based programs. Tied to the National Standards of Learning, EiaB focuses on object-based learning, emphasizing the artworks currently on display at the museum, the creative process, and the personal reflections that take place as part of viewing art. The program is offered free to all public and private elementary schools located within a two-and-a-half hour drive from Aspen. Following the museum's visit to the classroom, the program continues with a fully reimbursed visit to the museum, where students tour the facility, meet museum staff, and see the work of artists discussed at their school.

school visits and 24 museum tours through the EiaB program. Of these schools, four were new to the program. The AAM served 1,622 students and 87 third-grade classrooms, setting a new institutional record. Moving forward, the AAM is committed to expanding EiaB to middle-school audiences and providing additional online resources for elementary and secondary educators.

The AAM's 2010-11 educational programs and scholarships were supported by Carolyn and Ken Hamlet, Mary and Patrick Scanlan, Marcia and Philip Rothblum Foundation, and the Colorado Creative Industries. The Colorado Creative Industries and its activities are made possible through an annual appropriation from the Colorado General Assembly and federal funds from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Young Curators of the Roaring Fork

May 6-13, 2011

The Aspen Art Museum's Young Curators of the Roaring Fork (YCRF) program strengthens students' visual literacy skills by taking them through the process of organizing an art exhibition. The sixth year of the program saw students representing Aspen, Basalt, Carbondale, Glenwood Springs, and Rifle high schools. Attending weekly meetings with AAM curators and educators throughout the academic year, the young curators identified the theme of the exhibition—hideout—and solicited work from peers, asking artists in their schools to create works in any media that uniquely explored the real or imaginary places we go to get away. Their efforts yielded nearly 100 submissions, from which the curators selected, administrated, and arranged a museum-quality exhibition.

Support for the YCRF program and exhibition is provided by Mary and Patrick Scanlan.

2011 Winter Workshops

Designed for children ages 4 to 10, the Aspen Art Museum's winter workshops develop artistic skills and inspire greater understanding of contemporary art through fun, hands-on projects, performances, group discussions, and off-site excursions—all under the guidance of professional artists and educators.

Painter Protégé: An Introduction to Painting and Sculpture
Ages 4-6, December 27-31

Inspired by AAM-exhibiting artists Mamma Andersson and Roger Hiorns, students in this workshop explored interior, landscape, and portrait painting and object assemblage, deconstruction, and reconstruction.

Aspen Eco: Recycled Crafts
Ages 4-6, December 20-24

Just in time for the holiday season, students in this workshop made eco-friendly recycled gifts, ornaments, and wrapping.

Smear Drip Dot: An Introduction to Painting

Ages 7-10, December 20-24

Inspired by AAM-exhibiting artist Mamma Andersson, students in this workshop explored painting by combining categories (landscape, portrait, interior, and abstraction) and employing a variety of materials.

Dream Building: Architecture 101

Ages 7-10, December 27-31

In honor of the new AAM building designed by Shigeru Ban, students in this workshop learned basic architectural principles and made their own miniature dream buildings.

2011 Summer Workshops

Program highlights

Over the course of 10 weeks this past summer, the AAM offered 29 week-long workshops to children ages 4-14: see a sample below. With a record-breaking attendance of 367, the 2011 workshops engaged participants in art-based activities that spanned the fields of fashion, sound art, creative writing, photography, and architecture, just to name a few. The AAM collaborated with numerous local organizations to offer innovative and exciting workshops to kids throughout the Roaring Fork Valley. Additionally the AAM partnered with the Aspen Center for Environmental Studies, Aspen Historical Society, and the Wylly Community Art Center in Basalt; along with Aspen Valley Ski and Snowboard Club, these institutions generously hosted a number of our summer workshops.

Ecofeatures & ZGreen Creatures

Ages 4-5, July 11-15

Participants explored Aspen's environment and responded to nature's shapes and colors with drawings, clay, paint, prints, and sculptures that use recycled materials.

Picture Your Words

Ages 6-8, July 11-15

In this collaboration with the Aspen Writers' Foundation, participants explored the relationship between writing and the visual arts with activities that included illustration, bookmaking, and creative writing.

Fancy Fashionistas

Ages 6-8, July 25-29

This workshop began with a trip to the Ralph Lauren store in Aspen for an exclusive preview of the RL spring collection and culminated in a public fashion show featuring clothing participants created. Throughout the week, participants designed and made clothes to express who they are and what they think about the world.

Mic, Mix, and Mash That

Ages 9-11, June 20-24

Participants learned how to make and record their own sound art using computers and modern audio technology. Participants also worked to create an audio segment discussing contemporary art and debuted some of their auditory artworks on-air at KSPN Radio.

Photomania

Ages 9-11, July 11-15

Digital Arts Aspen invited participants in this workshop to make their own large-scale digital print at their studio after a week-long adventure exploring Aspen using a variety of cameras.

Decoders

Ages 12-14, August 15-19

Hosted by Aspen Valley Ski and Snowboard Club, this workshop offered participants the opportunity to decode visual, audio, and material culture through drawing, digital media, printing, sculpture, and encaustic collage.

Aspen Art Press

One of Artbook|DAP's featured imprints in 2011, the Aspen Art Press extends the Aspen Art Museum's mission into print, documenting the most important evolutions in international contemporary art with timely publications, original scholarship, and thoughtful graphic design. Through a robust calendar of publications and collaborative book projects, the press documents the AAM's achievements and brings Aspen's forward-thinking culture to the world.

AAM National/International
Museum Partnerships

Each year, the Aspen Art Museum shows its support of three national/international efforts to provide access to museums throughout the Americas.

The AAM has participated in Smithsonian magazine's Museum Day since 2007. Emulating the free admission policy of the Smithsonian Institution's Washington, DC-based properties, approximately 500,000 people visit a museum for free on the designated day.

For the second consecutive year, the AAM participated in a partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts' Blue Star Families program, for which 1,500 museums across America from all 50 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and American Samoa offer free admission to all active-duty military personnel and their families from Memorial Day through to Labor Day 2011.

Beginning May 18, 2010, the AAM and 105 other Association of Art Museum Directors' member museums across the United States, Canada, and Mexico, offered free admission, or other discounts and amenities, to highlight the lasting impact that visual arts institutions have within their individual communities for the AAMD celebration of International Museum Day.

AAM Community Advisory Committee

Beginning in November 2009 the Aspen Art Museum invited individuals from throughout the Roaring Fork Valley to add their voices to an open and ongoing dialogue about museum programming and practices and the role of the museum within the community.

Chaired by AAM Board of Trustees member Marc Friedberg since its inception, the CAC meets every other month to review the museum's goals and to weigh in on strategies for achieving mission-based objectives.

Snowmass Mountain

In the sixth year of the groundbreaking Aspen Art Museum and Aspen Skiing Company partnership, the duo presented unique collaborative projects that celebrate the shared vision of art in unexpected places.

For the 2010-11 sixth anniversary lift ticket, Aspen skiers and boarders wore a gate pass adorned by Swedish artist Karen "Mamma" Andersson. Andersson's works are drawn from a variety of sources, their disjointed perspectives and mismatched spatial relationships creating a sense of the otherworldly (see p. 5). Her 2003 painting Sleeping Standing Up was the source work for the season's limited-edition pass. The collaborative enterprise was once again highlighted by the free annual Create Your Own Lift Ticket on-mountain events for skiers of all ages at Snowmass Treehouse Kids' Adventure Center, and at Buttermilk in collaboration with the Aspen Valley Ski and Snowboard Club (AVSC).

Other AAM/SkiCo 2010-11 collaborative enterprises included 2010 Turner Prize-winner Susan Philipsz's audio installation, featuring an unaccompanied version of the Fleet Foxes song "White Winter Hymnal" at the Trestle Bridge on Snowmass Mountain, and New York-based photographer David Benjamin Sherry's limited-edition project for the SkiCo Bud Light Spring Jam weekend, featuring five different landscape images color-matched to keychain slide viewers. Sherry's project was integrated into the competitions and concerts held during the Spring Jam event.

. New AAM Education and Community Outreach Initiatives

Within the past year the AAM has implemented four new year-round outreach programs for diverse groups within the Roaring Fork Valley. Each program is held monthly and includes Story Creations (ages 3-5 years/Basalt Public Library), Active Art with the Heritage Assisted Living Center (Carbondale), Art Adventures (Pitkin County Senior Center), and a classroom visit/museum tour program with Glenwood Youth Recovery Services, Glenwood Springs.

Both the Senior Center and Youth Recovery Programs are based on the popular AAM Exhibition in a Box program model, which includes a PowerPoint presentation followed by an art-making session and field trip to the museum.

During the 2010-11 fiscal year, the AAM has served over 1,800 individuals via outreach programs. In addition to these, the summer Story Art program (ages 3-5/ Pitkin County Library) was expanded as a year-round program.

Additional outreach efforts also included the El Jebel Family Resource Fair, Aspen High School Service Day, the Basalt Elementary School Cinco de Mayo celebration, as well as other non-Exhibition in a Box school tours.

2011 Roaring Fork Open Kickoff Party Celebrates Collaboration with Eric Fischl's National America: Now and Here Project

Wednesday, May 25, 2011
Roaring Fork Valley artists, members, and friends of the Aspen Art Museum joined in for a community celebration of local creative culture. In addition to refreshments and live music, the event provided local artists with a chance to learn more about the 2011 Roaring Fork Open (RFO), register for a spot in the fall exhibition, and hear Eric Fischl, artist and creator of the America: Now and Here project, discuss how the RFO would engage the community in a dynamic and creative dialogue about America, using his own national America: Now and Here project as inspiration.

The RFO is the AAM's biennial exhibition open to all artists residing in the valley between Aspen and Glenwood Springs. A longstanding tradition—the first exhibition was held in 1980—the RFO highlights the AAM's ongoing investment in sustaining a vibrant arts community. Hundreds of artists have shared their work at the AAM, giving community and museum members the opportunity to connect with neighboring artists.

AAM Pitkin County Jail Outreach/Partnership

Since November 2007, the Aspen Art Museum has been partnering with the Pitkin County Jail in an outreach program that affords inmates interested in the visual arts a creative outlet via art-making and a visual arts-centered dialogue.

The AAM education department presents informal lectures on contemporary art and artists, access to video content, printed exhibition materials, and hands-on art activities that relate to museum exhibitions. Art supplies and instruction are provided to enable inmates to work on developing their artistic skills.

Pitkin County Jail Administrator Deputy Don Bird relates: "Enforced idleness is a function of daily inmate jail life. Combating this routine is a challenge particularly in a small jail environment. The AAM's art program has been a boon to our jail in this regard. The inmates who participate sometimes have to overcome feelings of stepping out of their comfort zone, but may discover for the first time the joy of creativity and accomplishment and learn something new and positive about themselves."

AAM and Ralph Lauren Collaboration

For the past three summers (2009-11), the AAM education department has partnered with Ralph Lauren Aspen to host “Wear Are You” summer fashion workshops for kids. Participants learn about fashion sketching and design and make their own functional garments. The workshop is offered in two sessions, one for six- to nine-year-old students and again for students ages ten to thirteen. This year, older students had the opportunity to create their own window display (see photo) with their sketches of Ralph Lauren ensembles, which were installed in the Aspen store window on 501 East Cooper Street.

The Aspen Art Museum / Aspen High School College Scholarship Award

Thanks to the Marcia and Philip Rothblum Foundation, every year a graduating Aspen High School senior is awarded a $5,000 annual scholarship toward a continuing visual arts education at the college level. AAM Aspen High School College Scholarship awards are based on a student’s stated academic intentions toward a future in visual art and a demonstrated need for financial assistance. Candidates write essays and submit records of academic interests and achievements along with examples of their visual art and recommendations from instructors, counselors, and/or other academic and civic leaders.

AAM 2011 Aspen High School College Scholarship recipient Lena Nicholson is using her award to pursue a major in Photography and a minor in New Media Arts at Georgia’s prestigious Savannah School of Art and Design (SCAD). Born and raised in Aspen, Nicholson’s commitment to the visual arts included two years as an AAM Young Curator of the Roaring Fork in high school.

Elleree Fletcher, the 2010 winner, is a double Studio Arts and English major at the University of Colorado, Boulder, and 2009 recipient Chelsea Gilmore is working toward her BFA in Sculpture at Colorado State University with dual minors in Environmental Affairs and Organic Agriculture.

AAM Pitkin County Library Partnership

Beginning in summer 2008, the AAM announced its partnership with the Pitkin County Library. In a new collaboration called Story Art, the AAM helped coordinate content and art-related activities during the library’s Wednesday morning story hour in July for three-, four-, and five-year-olds. Children enjoyed stories about art, real-time illustrations by visiting artists, and hands-on art projects.

AAM Partners with American Institute of Architects for AIA Architecture Month to Present “Aspen’s Significant Architecture: Past, Present, And Future”

On the evening of April 21, 2011, the AAM partnered with the American Institute of Architects (AIA) Colorado West chapter, the Aspen Historic Preservation Commission (HPC), The Aspen Historical Society, and Brewster/McCleod Architects to host a free presentation and panel discussion honoring AIA Architecture Month. The evening discussion focused on Aspen’s singular community relationship with internationally significant architecture and the architects and buildings that have, and continue to, impact our community. Held at the Aspen Center for Physics (ACP), the evening featured presentations by the HPC’s Amy Guthrie and Willis Pember of local architectural firm Willis Pember Architects, Inc., as well as a subsequent panel discussion moderated by the Aspen Institute’s Steve Wickes with such esteemed community luminaries as architect Harry Teague, local entrepreneurial legend and ACP founder George Stranahan, longtime local contractor Steve Hansen, and architects Suzannah Reid and Willis Pember.

Thomas W. Benton Book Signing
at the Sky Hotel

On Wednesday, July 13, at 5 pm, the Aspen Art Museum and creative partners at the Sky Hotel hosted a very successful book signing event with author Daniel Joseph Watkins, whose fully illustrated Thomas W. Benton: Artist/Activist explores the life and career of the local Aspen luminary and artist, designer, and architect.

Friends, fans, well-wishers, and art lovers gathered at the Sky for an AAM-curated presentation of Benton's work and to hear Watkins discuss both the book and Benton's life and work with AAM Adjunct Curator Matthew Thompson.

Other Local Partners

Other AAM local and regional partnership efforts include collaborations with Anderson Ranch Arts Center, Aspen Institute/Aspen Ideas Festival, Aspen Public Schools/Pitkin/Eagle/Garfield/Lake/Delta County School Districts, Aspen Elementary School, Aspen Young Professionals Association, The Buddy Program, City of Aspen Community Development Department and the Historical Preservation Commission, Colorado Coalition of Contemporary Art, and Colorado Mountain College.

The Bruce T. Halle Family Foundation for Latin American Art

In October 2011, the AAM announced the funding of The Bruce T. Halle Family Foundation for Latin American Art (Halle Fund). The Halle Fund was established to support exhibition, educational, and public programming featuring Latin American art and artists, and for Latino audiences. With this gift the museum can now provide expanded service to the Roaring Fork Valley's significant Latin American population. The fund supports AAM exhibition, educational, and public programming, as well as the generation of bilingual programming, content, and collateral, and it also enhances the museum's Exhibition in a Box program. Reaching more than 1,300 students on Colorado's remote Western Slope, a community with a 40-60% Latino population, the AAM now secures a Spanish-speaking presenter to service learners and translate printed program materials.

Other initiatives that the fund has enabled include Create Your Own Lift Ticket event information and materials translation beginning with the March 12, 2011, event at Buttermilk and the addition of two AAM summer bilingual workshops per year (during 2010 and 2011) with translation of their related informational materials.

AAM 2011 Major Donor Dinner Honorees Eleanore and Domenico De Sole

Each December, the AAM holds its annual Major Donor Dinner at Aspen's Caribou Club. Each honoree couple is recognized for their valuable and lasting contributions to the AAM. We are extremely grateful for everything that each of our donors does to assure the future successes of the AAM. Our 2011 honorees were Eleanore and Domenico De Sole. The De Soles served as Chairs of the AAM National Council during 2010-11, with Domenico joining the AAM Board of Trustees in summer 2011.

AAM Art Trips Scandinavia

Wednesday, June 8-Monday, June 13, 2011 The AAM travel program provides unparalleled opportunities to experience the best of contemporary art and architecture in the U.S. and around the world.

Beginning in Stockholm on June 8, 2011—a date selected to correspond with the VIP opening of the 2010 Venice Biennial (June 1-3) and the VIP preview of Art Basel (June 14)—AAM guests began a six-day contemporary art journey throughout Scandinavia, continuing from Sweden on to Oslo, Norway, and then Copenhagen, Denmark, where the trip ended on Monday, June 13. During that time, participants enjoyed amazing opportunities to take in-depth looks at contemporary art and architecture in Scandinavia, visiting museums and contemporary art spaces, private collections, artist studios, and galleries. The experience was made complete by stays in some of the best hotels along the way, as well as by sampling the finest in Nordic cuisine at some of the region's most amazing restaurants.

AAM Art Trips are eligible to Director's Circle donor levels or higher. For information on how to participate in future AAM Art Trips, please contact Development Coordinator Ellie Closuit at 970.925.8050 ext. 26 or eclosuit@aspenartmuseum.org.

The New Aspen Art Museum:
Major Milestones

During the 2010-11 fiscal year significant progress was made on the museum's plan to construct a new building in downtown Aspen.

In February 2011 the AAM celebrated the acquisition of the property at South Spring Street and East Hyman Avenue with an elegant seated dinner hosted by June and Paul Schorr. Just days before the demolition of the existing structure, the AAM Board of Trustees, National Council, and founding Board members toasted the major progress in securing land for the new building. Board of Trustees President Daniel Holtz took the opportunity to recognize the founding AAM Board members in attendance, including Dick Carter, Barbara Conviser, David Floria, Nancy Lovendahl, Roger Moyer, Larry Yaw, and Laura Donnelly.

Following the demolition process, 637 East Hyman Avenue (the proper address for the new Aspen Art Museum) was activated as an additional exhibition space for museum programming, featuring installations of a temporary Shigeru Ban-designed pavilion and artworks by Franz West, Rirkrit Tiravanija, and Pedro Reyes. An evening film series utilized a specially made grass plinth where guests could sit and enjoy in the open air, making the site Aspen's only "bike-in theater." Utilizing the Shigeru Ban signature paper tube structure, the AAM greeted over 5,000 visitors to the new site, showcasing the building design model and architectural renderings and presenting a selection of sound art with a compilation of works curated by sound artist Stephen Vitiello.

2011 summer activities on the new site culminated with the highlight of an official hardhats-and-shovels groundbreaking ceremony on "Aspen's Day" (8.16.11). AAM Director and Chief Curator Heidi Zuckerman Jacobson, AAM Trustee Nancy Magoon, and AAM Board Vice President John Phelan set their shovels and took a ceremonial first dig at the center of the property. Many members of the AAM, the Board of Trustees, AAM National Council, and the community were present. The day concluded with a free community party that kicked off with a signature text-based firework artwork by Cerith Wyn Evans titled Take Your Desires for Reality (1996). The celebration included beer by Stone Brewing, sliders and lobster rolls by the Caribou Club, and snowcones and popcorn provided by POP in Snowmass.

As the design process continues toward the commencement of construction, plans are in place to continue to present artwork on the new site.

On December 28, 2010, at 4:30 pm, the Aspen Art Museum kicked off its annual après-ski gala of global fashion and signature luxury items, Dennis Basso FREESTYLE at Aspen's St. Regis Aspen Resort.

A "Freestyle Eve" cocktail preview of main event live auction items was hosted by Aspen's Gallerie Maximilian 5-7 pm, on Monday, December 27, at the gallery's downtown Aspen location.

The Freestyle gala evening always begins with champagne, cocktails, caviar, delectable hors d'oeuvres, and an elaborate array of silent auction lots—fashion accessories, trip packages to exotic locales, signature luxury items and experiences, and a host of other one-of-a-kind donations.

2010 live auction highlights included a Martin Katz-bejeweled night at the 2010 Emmy Awards, complete with admission to the Governor's Ball and a two-night sojourn at L.A.'s Casa del Mar Hotel; a two-ticket admission to Milan Fashion Week's Prada, Versace, and Trussardi Spring/Summer runway shows; a weekend at the 34th Annual Kennedy Center Honors ceremony with accommodations at Washington D.C.'s Four Seasons; four tickets to a culture-packed weekend in Dallas at Super Bowl XLV; a very special VIP trip to the 2011 Monaco Grand Prix; an artwork by influential American artist Richard Prince, Untitled (Nurse) (2007); and the perennial one-of-a-kind Dennis Basso coat creation made especially for each year's event.

Jacob Proctor

Curator

This past August, the Aspen Art Museum was pleased to welcome Jacob Proctor as Curator. Proctor comes to Aspen from Ann Arbor, MI, where he served as Associate Curator of Modern and Contemporary Art at the University of Michigan Museum of Art (UMMA) from September 2007 until July 2011. At UMMA, Proctor was responsible for the museum's collection and exhibitions program of Modern and Contemporary Art, organizing a wide range of exhibitions and performances by such artists as Cory Arcangel, Walead Beshty, and Mai-Thu Perret. Proctor received a BA, summa cum laude, in Art History from the University of Colorado at Boulder in 1999, and MA in the History of Art and Architecture from Harvard University in 2002, where he is in the process of completing his PhD.

Danielle Stephens

Education Curator

In May 2011, the Aspen Art Museum welcomed new Education Curator Danielle Stephens. Danielle relocated from Houston, Texas, where she was the Docent Program Manager at the Museum of Fine Arts, Houston. In her role at the AAM, she develops and implements education workshops, outreach programs, public programs, performances, lectures, screenings, and resources. Danielle has presented for the American Association of Museums (AAM), Art Beyond Sight (formerly Art Education for the Blind), the National Docent Symposium (NDS), and the Texas Art Educators Association (TAEA). She currently serves as the Program Director of the American Association of Museum Volunteers (AAMV). Danielle received her BFA in Art History and Photography at the University of Oklahoma and her MA in Art History at Southern Methodist University.

It is with great pleasure that I report to you the Aspen Art Museum financial position. In the last year we have increased our assets by nearly 60%—resulting in a combined financial statement that totals $26 million. This amazing growth and continued stability are a tremendous reflection on your support of our museum and your commitment to the cultural fabric of Aspen.

On the following pages you will find the combined financial statements for the Aspen Art Museum and the Aspen Art Museum Foundation. These entities remain distinct organizations with separate governing boards. However, the combined presentation of statements is a more accurate representation of our financial position and is in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles regarding related parties.

You will note that we ended fiscal year 2010-11 with an overall surplus of $6,311,681. This includes recognizing $6,075,056 of pledges and donations toward the ongoing Capital and Endowment Campaign. Another area to highlight is our annual fund-raising efforts, which include our benefits netting over $2.4 million, a 28% increase from our previous fiscal year. Both of these areas reflect the incredible generosity we receive for our programs as well as our new building efforts. In combination with the continued prudent oversight of the operating budget, we generated a significant surplus in operations, which has been reinvested into the institution for sustaining our programs.

The Aspen Art Museum Foundation endowment funds, as managed by the Aspen Community Foundation, continued to be affected by economic conditions. Overall we experienced a loss of a little over 3%, inclusive of fees, over the course of the fiscal year. Increased pledges and contributions to the Capital and Endowment Campaign resulted in an increase of the Foundation’s net assets by $253,469 this year despite the investment loss.

As part of the new building project we are beginning to see major changes in our assets. You will note a significant increase in our “property and equipment” line item.

This is the result of the purchase of the land for our new building as well as three employee housing units to satisfy our mitigation requirements with the City of Aspen. We also acquired a long-term note payable of $3.5 million from Vectra Bank as part of the land purchase.

We ended the fiscal year with Cash and Cash Equivalents of $1.4 million and endowment investments of $5.4 million. With our investment in property and the capital campaign-related pledges, the combined financials reflect total assets of $26,715,445. This is an incredible testament to the astounding support for the museum.

These financial achievements are only possible thanks to the many generous contributions that make the Aspen Art Museum and Foundation successful and financially sound. As our new building project progresses we look forward to continued growth for our institution as well as the ongoing commitment of fiscally conservative management.

Yours sincerely,

Jon Lee

2010-11 CONTRIBUTORS

Thank you to our many contributors in 2010-11. The Aspen Art Museum relies upon the generosity of hundreds of members and donors each year to provide quality visual arts programming to the Aspen Community and Roaring Fork Valley. We would like to recognize the following individuals, families, businesses and organizations for their extraordinary support of the museum between October 1, 2010, and September 30, 2011. Please note that giving totals reflect annual contributions excluding gifts to our ongoing Capital and Endowment Campaign as well as auction purchases.
