This seminar invites students to participate in the seminar aimed at exploring the role of architects in creating sustainable and equitable environments. The seminar will feature a range of topics and experts, including discussions on the political, economic, and legal history of trees and forests.

The seminar will be led by Erica Goetz, the Coordinator for Core II. The seminar will take place on March 31 from 1pm to 2pm. Registration will open soon, and participants can contact Kenneth Frampton for more information.

Guest speakers for the seminar include Bob Marino, Richard Plunz, and Lindsey Cadena. They will discuss topics such as the impacts of the global pandemic and climate emergency on architecture, as well as the potential for new possibilities in sustainable design.

The seminar will also feature a hands-on approach to remote conferencing, allowing students to connect with experts from around the world. Participants will have the opportunity to use the hashtag #gsappfamily2020, or send us photos or content related to the seminar.

The seminar is open to the public, and all interested parties are encouraged to attend. It is an excellent opportunity for students to learn from experts in the field and engage in meaningful discussions about the role of architecture in shaping our future.

For more information or to register, please contact Kenneth Frampton at kenneth.frampton@columbia.edu.