ASSATA SHAKUR Joanne Deborah Chesimard

Engulfed in Wilmington North Carolina's segregated infrastructure, Assata Shakur was an activist in her ideologies as a revolutionary in her adult years. She moved to Queens New York and embraced the essence of our African ancestral history. Black people invented many innovations in America that went unrespected.

While studying in college, she began to question how Black and Brown people were presented in historically, economically, politically, and structurally. Her beliefs in this period of enlightenment began to strengthen her opposition to our capitalistic society where Nazis and bigots policed our communities.

No one is going to give you the education you need to overthrow them.

Nobody is going to teach you your true history, teach you your true heroes,

Knowledge will help set you free.

SHE WHO STRUGGLES

FOR THE PEOPLE

THE THANKFUL

Assata married herself to a rich culmination of great thinkers at the Manhattan Community College entitled the Golden Drums Society. She gained a deeper love and embracement of her ancestral strength. Building upon the ideologies of those who lead the Civil Rights, she resisted the elitist racist perspectives of America.

“The thing that influenced me the most was history, reading, and understanding that Black people struggle”.

It was not a process where people were enslaved and went through that whole thing as victims. Our people had a rich strong history and intellectual history, a history of taking over slave ships, strikes, to building

“ON EVERY LEVEL THE US GOVERNMENT WAS RUN BY THE RICH.
I WANTED TO JOIN AN ORGANIZATION THAT
WANTED OUR WHOLE GOVERNMENT
TO BE COMPLETELY CHANGED. THE BLACK
PANTHER PARTY BELIEVED YOU COULD NOT BE FREE UNDER THE SAME SYSTEM BASED ON RACISM AND CAPITALISM.”

In every aspect, it was difficult for the Black Panther Party to maneuver as a unit due to the surveillance and misrepresentation used by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. In my departure from the party to flee these issues, I was still the target of the most extreme types of surveillance. My whole house was bugged. The reason I knew it was bugged was that I was making tapes on recorders and I got a phone call saying

STOP MAKING TAPES! POLICE RAIDED MY HOUSE.

“At this time conspiracies were made against me and members of the Black Panther Party.

One of the most common tools for oppression the government used were the conspiracy trials.

It happened to so many people.”

“I decided to make myself unavailable..

I decided to disappear.

I was afraid they would torture me and beat me as they did the Panther 21 member Joan Bird.”

SHE WAS UNRECOGNIZABLE.

LEONARD PELTIER

Raised amongst the pride, education, and culture of the Lakota & Anishinabe Tribe of North Dakota, Leonard Peltier became to what a majority of Indigenous believed to be an icon and a savior to the preservation of the American Indian Culture.

As an adolescent, Peltier became aware and infused with the traditions of his tribe from the perspective of his grandparents and Elders.

ASSIMILATION

Leonard's concern with the marginalization of the tribes across America heightened in 1953 as a direct result of government and law enforcement figures carrying out systems to remove the essence of Indian culture. Children were given identical hair cuts and washed as if they needed a readjustment to American society. These operations were one of many attempts to control the Indian population and remove them from their homes and land.

Black Hill was sacred land for the tribes.

What was discovered was the governments action to take their lands in the form of exploitation. According to corporate records, mining companies would take at least three and a half billion dollars of gold from the land.

HISTORY

Around 1874, General Custard took geologists to the tribe's land. What they found were resources of natural minerals and wanted to take advantage of the land. The FBI conspired to deal with AIM in a militant manner.

“I felt relieved that Dino was found unguilty”
Peltier was convicted under an anti Indigenous judge under a mysterious transfer of the case which militated for a conviction.

ANA BELEN MONTES

Growing up in a family of military personnel, Ana Belen Montes was no stranger to how the U.S. government interacted with the affairs of other countries.

She became apart of the ranks in the Defense Intelligence Agency.

Noted as a “no non-sense official, Montes was given the position to travel to Cuba to study the Cuban military.

Montes discovered the atrocious plans of the U.S government against Cuba. .

Montes communicated with the Cuban Intelligence Service through encrypted messages and received her instructions through shortwave encrypted transmissions from Cuba.

In addition, Montes communicated by coded numeric pager messages with the Cuban Intelligence Service by public telephones located in the District of Columbia and Maryland. The codes included ‘I received a message’ or ‘danger.

“We have displayed intolerance and contempt toward Cuba for most of the last four decades.

We have never respected Cuba’s right to make its journey towards its ideals of equality and justice. I do not understand why we must continue to dictate how the Cubans should select their leaders, who their leaders cannot be, and what laws are appropriate in their land.

Why can’t we let Cuba pursue an internal journey, as the United States has been doing for over two centuries?”
