

OCTOBER 17 – 24

Today, Columbia GSAPP welcomes prospective students to campus on the occasion of the School's Fall 2022 Open House! Please join us in welcoming our visitors as they tour the campus, drop in on a selection of open courses and midterm presentations, and join us for tonight's led by Emanuel Admassu '12 MSAAD '13 AAR, Assistant Professor in the Architecture and Urban Design Programs.

EMANUEL ADMASSU AD—WO

October 17, 6:30pm
Wood Auditorium

Emanuel Admassu is the founding partner, with Jen Wood, of the architecture and art practice AD—WO. He is also a co-founding board member of the Black Reconstruction Collective. Emanuel Admassu's art, design, and teaching practices operate at the intersection of design theory, spatial justice, and contemporary African art. The work meditates on the international constellation of Afrodiasporic spaces.

The lecture will be followed by a response from Dean Andrés Jaque and Assistant Professor Ateya Khorakiwala.

October 17, 8:30pm
Avery 100

Tonight's lecture by Emanuel Admassu will be followed by a social with GSAPP's student groups! Connect with your peers from across the school and prospective students visiting for Open House, and enjoy catering from Harlem-based food truck The Little Hot Dog Wagon.

MICHELLE DAIGLE

October 18, 1:15pm
Virtual

For Place & Movement: The Politics & Analytics of Indigenous Water Relations

Michelle Daigle is an Assistant Professor at the University of Toronto with a cross-appointment in the Department of Geography and Planning and the Centre for Indigenous Studies. Daigle is Mushkegowuk (Cree), a member of Constance Lake First Nation in Treaty 9, and of French ancestry. Her research examines Indigenous resurgence and freedom amid the global conditions of colonial capitalist violence.

Organized by the PhD in Urban Planning Students at GSAPP.

SOIL, LAND, FILL

October 20, 12pm
Hybrid (Buell Room 300S)

A discussion among Catherine Fennell, Vanessa Agard-Jones, Linda F. Chavez Baca, and Seth Denizen.

This conversation brings together practitioners of design, landscape, and anthropology in the Americas, to share notes on the unique capacity of the soil—and its associated practices such as filling—to reveal new modes of chemical kinship, new tasks for public archaeology, and new remedial building practices that have arisen on post-industrial land.

Organized as one of the Conversations on Architecture and Land in and out of the Americas by the Buell Center.
