New Directions and Connections in British Urban History

A TWO-DAY WORKSHOP
September 12-13, 2019

BRITISH URBAN HISTORY IS THRIVING. This workshop brings many of its leading scholars together for the first time, placing them in conversation with colleagues in European, South Asian, US, and digital urban history.

KEYNOTE LECTURE 11am, Friday, September 13
“New Directions in Urban History: Charting Transnational Connections”
by ROSEMARY WAKEMAN, Fordham University

ADDITIONAL PUBLIC SESSIONS include a roundtable revisiting TOM SUGRUE’s The Origins of the Urban Crisis (1996), and a lecture by LEAH MEISTERLIN on the impact of new digital technologies upon urban research.

WORKSHOP IS FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC, though registration is required for attendees from outside NYU. To register and receive the complete schedule, contact Guy Ortolano: ortolano@nyu.edu.
