THE GREEN
NEW DEAL

Over the course of the semester, the Temple Hoyne Buell Center for the Study of American Architecture is organizing a series of research, curricular, and programming initiatives to consider the social, technical, and political contours of the ambitious proposal known as the Green New Deal. Events include a GSAPP-hosted simulcast of Designing a Green New Deal on September 13th; Public Works for a Green New Deal in Wood Auditorium on September 27th; and The Green New Deal: A Public Assembly at the Queens Museum on November 17th. 1919: BLACK
WATER

EXHIBITION OPENING

6:00pm – Buell Hall
The Arthur Ross Architecture Gallery presents a solo exhibition by artist Torkwase Dyson, featuring new site-specific paintings and sculpture that explore the contested geography of water, and the relationships between race, climate change, and the architectural imagination. Dyson will present a public lecture, followed by a discussion with invited guests and an opening reception.

NARRATIVE
PRACTICE

DISCUSSION

1:00pm – Wood Auditorium
The 5th Annual Urban Design
Storytelling Symposium
As media and design increasingly converge, this symposium asks how narrative strategies — of novelists, journalists, filmmakers, and activists — reflect design methodologies, from performing site analysis to evaluating success.
