

OCT. 31 – NOV. 4

Please note that the lecture by Yung Ho Chang, previously scheduled for today (10/31), has been rescheduled for Wednesday, November 30. Visit the event page on GSAPP's website for more information.

ISABELLE ANGUELOSKI

November 1, 1:15pm
Virtual

Segregating by Greening: What Do We Mean by Green Gentrification?

Isabelle Angueloski is the director of BCNUJ, an ICREA Research Professor, a Senior Researcher and Principal Investigator at ICTA and former coordinator of the research group Healthy Cities and Environmental Justice at IMIM.

Organized by the UP PhD students as part of the Lectures in Planning Series.

THOMAS ALBRECHT

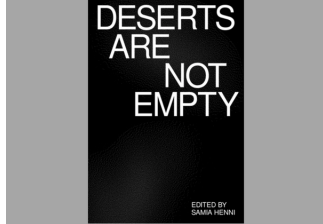

November 3, 12pm
513 Fayerweather

The Reconstruction of the Berliner Schloss

Architect Thomas Albrecht will speak about the motivation and history behind the reconstruction of Berliner Schloss and discuss its design, considering its functions, urban integration, sustainability, and sculptural program.

Professor Jorge Otero-Pailos will provide the response.

Co-organized by the Historic Preservation Program at Columbia GSAPP as part of the Preservation Lecture Series and by the Collins/Kaufmann Forum at the Department of Art History and Archaeology.

DESERTS ARE NOT EMPTY

November 4, 1pm
Fayerweather 209, Hybrid

This event celebrates the launch of Deserts Are Not Empty, edited by Samia Henni, the latest publication from Columbia Books on Architecture and the City (CBAC). Samia will be joined by GSAPP Professors Reinhold Martin and Felicity Scott, along with CBAC Director Isabelle Kirkham-Lewitt, CBAC Assistant Director Joanna Joseph, and graphic designer Laura Coombs.

Deserts Are Not Empty brings together a variety of voices, disciplines, formats, genres, and forms of visualization to unsettle and unlearn the desert, opening up possibilities to see, think, and imagine it otherwise.

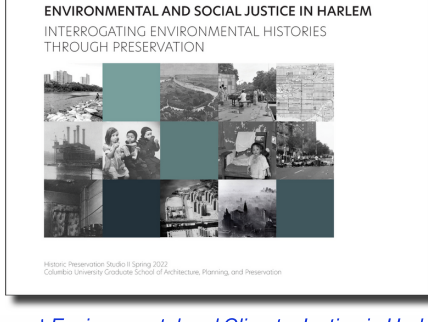

FRANCESCA TORELLO AND JOSHUA BARD

November 4, 1:30pm
Preservation Technology Lab

Exploring the virtual in architecture: from historic replicas to Augmented Reality

A lecture and workshop by Francesca Torello and Joshua Bard. Their work reframes the contemporary discourse surrounding augmented reality by highlighting the latent virtuality that consistently runs through architecture. In the workshop, they will explore how layers of augmented and virtual reality reveal new characteristics of physical spaces, modifying our understanding and perception.

Organized as part of the Preservation Lecture Series.

The studio report Environmental and Climate Justice in Harlem: Interrogating Environmental Histories through Preservation produced as part of the Spring 2022 Historic Preservation Studio II led by Erica Avrami and Morgan O'Hara is now online!

Using Harlem as a lens of interrogation, this studio explored the historic perspective of environmental racism and environmental justice in NYC through place-focused research, to better understand the land use-related dimensions of these histories, how injustice is embedded and repeated in built environments and policies over time, and how preservation's methods of inquiry can be brought to bear on this legacy and climate justice-oriented planning.

This Thursday, November 3, Professor Andrew Dolkart and Assistant Professor Erica Avrami will speak at the Ford Foundation as part of the event Saving This Place! A Call to Action for Preserving Harlem.
