ABOUT

CHEF TREGAYE

Chef Tregaye, an Atlanta native, A graduate of the Cordon Bleu as well as a very passionate chef with a love for teaching others how to push the limits of culinary arts. She also has a junior chef summer camp to teach the youth and develop their culinary skills. Her goal is to help the entire world see food differently. She learned the basics at Le Cordon Bleu, but she soon realized that her love for cooking came from her youthful soul and love for fusion cuisine. Chef Tregaye prides herself in creating new ways of creating masterpieces. Being a wife and a mother, her passion is ensuring that parents learn fun ways of preparing their child's favorite dish in a healthier, fun, and exciting way.

Growing up eating her grandmother's farm-fresh cooking, Chef Tregaye developed her love for the culinary arts. Being skilled in creating dishes from 24 different countries, Chef Tregaye created a love for taking food from all over the world and fusing them with her southern flair.

Chef Tregaye is the first African American woman to win "Food Network Star". This launched her into becoming the host of several food shows including the honor of being offered, by Oprah Winfrey herself to have her own shows "Tregaye's Way" and "Tregaye's Way In The Kitchen". Her shows are part of the first food shows on Oprah Winfrey's Network ( now streaming on Discovery Plus). Chef Tregaye also hosts Cakealikes streaming on Discovery Plus and is the author of "Kitchen Conversations with Chef Tregaye", a cookbook/biography.

Currently Chef Tregaye is the owner of Chef Tregaye and Company, hosting television shows, and commercial appearances on national networks. She also has an extensive product line with her signature chef knife, premium seasonings, hot honey, and so much more all on her website www.cheftregaye.com.
