

Audio Transcript: Alex Poots on the Power of Audiences

Alex Poots:

I think that, you know, human beings from the dawn of our existence have gathered together to experience things together, whether it's religious practice or arts, or storytelling, or political movements, but they do them collectively and in groups. And they gain energy from others in the presence of others. And I think this is incredibly significant to us as a civilization.