METHOD BEHIND THE MADNESS OF COWBOY

What is a tribute band? Many think a tribute band is a band who only replicates cover songs, getting fame off someone else's ideas. But they're wrong.

A good tribute band embodies the soul and essence of who they're playing tribute to. They research and rehearse, making sure to get every step, every movement, every note just right. Tribute bands allow our favorite artists to never die. A great tribute band makes sure, we as listeners, never have to say, "that was their last show."

This is exactly what Cowboy, the Original Kid Rock Tribute does.

15 years ago, lead singer Josh Vicious had an idea. An idea not many people thought would take off. For the past 15 years, he has taken his idea of creating a one-of-a-kind Kid Rock tribute show to levels even he didn't think possible. Today, Josh and his world class musicians behind him, perform nationwide from House of Blues to the biggest motorcycle rallies in the country.

Each show is a nostalgic experience, playing all of Kid Rock's iconic hit songs, as well as adding subtle twists paying tribute to Lynyrd Skynyrd, Guns-N-Roses and Hank Williams Jr. but each show never duplicates the one before. There are no ordered set lists, no tracks being run, no formal choreography. Just old school rock n' roll. Cowboy's shows take you back to Woodstock 99 meets the Viper Room era, where music is about one-of-a-kind guitar solos, adlib vocal stretches, and drums that vibrate your chest while watching.
