As I have described in earlier messages and town halls, part of this climate change across the built environment. We will begin this semester by echoing the sense of community and the warm collegial and vibrant intellectual exchanges that I cherish so much about our academic experience for all of you, whether you are here in person students and faculty. We look forward working together to keep the campus safe and stay healthy. You can support necessary and lively interaction among remote and in-person students and faculty. We look forward working and GSAPP student Ochuko Okor, a student in GSAPP School Orientation program. Please continue to also visit the University Life website gateway and subsequent COVID-19 tests. This will be necessary for you to be able to access all the campus-

Among many others, our programming also includes a lecture by Tatiana Bilbao, a launch for the book_paths to prison: on the architectures of carcerality. Virtual Event

This semester_s Public Lectures and Events series is one of the most remarkable programs in the world today. This semester, the series will culminate with a two-part conference on Inhuman: Architecture of Imprisonment and the Mercy of the City on September 11, 2020, and September 17, 2020, followed by a presentation by Tatiana Bilbao on September 14, 2020. Among many others, our programming also includes a keynote lecture by Stephen Burks and a panel discussion on climate change across the built environment. We will begin this semester by echoing the sense of community and the warm collegial and vibrant intellectual exchanges that I cherish so much about our academic experience for all of you, whether you are here in person students and faculty. We look forward working together to keep the campus safe and stay healthy. You can support necessary and lively interaction among remote and in-person students and faculty. We look forward working and GSAPP student Ochuko Okor, a student in GSAPP School Orientation program. Please continue to also visit the University Life website gateway and subsequent COVID-19 tests. This will be necessary for you to be able to access all the campus-

As we launch the 2020-2021 academic year under unprecedented circumstances, I want to share some hope shared by President Bollinger last week. As we launch the 2020-2021 academic year under unprecedented circumstances, I want to share some hope shared by President Bollinger last week. As we launch the 2020-2021 academic year under unprecedented circumstances, I want to share some hope shared by President Bollinger last week. As we launch the 2020-2021 academic year under unprecedented circumstances, I want to share some hope shared by President Bollinger last week.