CANDIDATES should support a congressional commission that will set new systems in place for slavery reparations, acts of murder, torture, and rape. They have continued human rights violations, including war crimes, human rights abuses, and disrespect for the rule of law. They have also been implicated in the deaths of civilians, including those who were killed while they were in custody, and those who were killed after being subjected to excessive force.

- Will they support the right of everyone to just and fair working conditions and wages, ensuring those to support their families?
- Will they work to end excessive sentences?
- Will they work to reduce the use of force and unlawful police killings and what is their plan to see this through?

WOMEN'S RIGHTS
CANDIDATES need to be making efforts targeting those marginalized by the current healthcare system, such as women who are victims of violence, gang violence, and women seeking reproductive health care.

- Will they take on legislative efforts to address racial disparities in women's health outcomes, including the Jeannette Acosta Invest in Women's Health Act?
- Will they support the right of women to access contraception, blocking federally funded health providers from giving them information, and allowing medical providers to discriminate against them?
- Will they support the right of women to access abortion information and services?
- Will they support the right of women to keep their families together?

TOXIC POLLUTION AND CLIMATE CRISIS
The United States government has invoked national security as a means to address the risks of climate change and toxic pollution.

- Will they improve the United States response to extreme weather events that are becoming more frequent and severe?
- Will they enforce and create pollution policies that protect pregnant women, children, and groups at greater risk of exposure to toxic pollution?
- Are they ensuring compliance with standards that are relevant under Food Quality Protection Act by demonstrating that there is a reasonable certainty a pesticide will not cause harm before allowing or revising its use?
- Will they commit to respect the independence of federal agencies and bureaus and respect the rule of law to ensure that they are not subject to political influence?

IMMIGRATION
CANDIDATES must support this current strategy toward migrants that lead to family separations and horrific detention conditions for adults and children. They must support a disentling of U.S. refugee systems, limit excessive surveillance and data collection and reform the immigration system that is resulting in continuing abuses under the previous U.S. administration.

- Will they support the right of women to access contraception, blocking federally funded health providers from giving them information, and allowing medical providers to discriminate against them?
- Will they support the right of women to access abortion information and services?
- Will they work to ensure that companies responsible for the pollution are held accountable for clean-up?
